

The generosity of supporters helps us meet the needs of the children, adults and families that we serve. Individuals, corporations, community groups and churches provide sponsorship throughout the year for the children and staff.

Catholic Charities' Family Services provides state-of-the-art behavioral health, child welfare, special education, early childhood and family-support services. Known for creativity, innovation, excellence and our nationally-recognized Family-Provider Partnership, the programs of CCFS focus on building and unifying families and helping families and individuals of all ages achieve healthier lives.

We're in the community.

Villa Maria Community Resources and the Center for Family Services provide a wide range of community-based programs that support children, adults and families where they live. These services include outpatient clinics, school-based programs, crisis response intervention and much more. Our dedicated staff members work with individuals, children and families to set goals, improve problem-solving skills and enhance relationships that build successful homes, schools and communities.

We offer residential care.

St. Vincent's Villa provides residential care for children with behavioral and emotional needs who require more intensive intervention. Staff work in partnership with the family to set treatment goals and develop strategies that can be continued in the home and community when the child leaves residential care.

Gallagher Services, funded by the State Developmental Disabilities Administration, provides residential services in central Maryland for adults with intellectual disabilities. Supports range from drop-in to 24/7 awake overnight supervision based on the individual's person-centered plan.

We provide family support services.

We recognize that mental and behavioral health issues don't just impact the individual. Families are supported by our staff and parent partners to help create a successful home environment.

We offer educational and vocational services.

The Villa Maria School offers intensive education, clinical and diagnostic services for children and youth with emotional and learning disabilities.

Gallagher Services provides vocational and work-readiness training and volunteer opportunities for adults with intellectual disabilities.

Family Services provides behavioral health, child welfare, special education, early childhood and family development services for children, teens, adults and families.

Catholic Charities' Family Services is a national leader in cultivating a true strength-based, partnership-driven culture that supports and empowers individuals and families.

A team of dedicated staff members and volunteers provide a continuum of community-based educational and residential services. Working together, we empower people to transform their lives while being safe and productive in their homes, communities and schools.

Our staff members are guided by a fundamental value: To Cherish the Divine Within All whom we serve. We affirm the inherent self-worth of every person and encourage resilience, growth and recovery. Through collaboration and sharing of resources, we proactively shape the service system through the development of creative programs for and with those we serve.
